

Swearing into office takes on new meaning

An Irish firm is offering lie detector tests to the presidential candidates in the run-up to next week's vote. Sian Devine, managing director of polygraph company, Lie Detector Ltd says the public should have the right to put a question to each of the candidates which elicits a truthful response and we are offering to do this in a polygraph test. "This election is a close run contest and this could help voters make their final decision."

Printed in The Irish Times Friday October 21st

<http://www.irishtimes.com/newspaper/ireland/2011/1021/1224306217550.html>